STRIKE IN WESTERLY

Aggrieved Weavers Object to $1 Weekly Decrease in Wages-Hearing in $500 Shampoo Suit-Start Made in Moving Former Woman's Exchange Building.

Labor troubles at the Westerly trained of the Lorraine Manufacturing and the control of the Lorraine Manufacturing the control of the Lorraine Manufacturing the control of the Lorraine Manufacturing the control of the weavers quit took by reason of dissatisfaction with a case of work they were required to be which resulted in lowering their control of the weavers the control of the weavers where the control of the weavers who had a week ago the looms that hey operated have remained tidle. A sew days ago some of the weavers who the control of the weavers who had previously quit. Then came a celling of dissatisfaction that resulted a nearly all of the 150 employes in he weaving department quitting work, which carried with it the enforced idle was of the loom fixers and other employes.

Some of those employed in the description of the contract to build five substantial two-tenement houses for the association, convenient to the plant,

Some of those employed in the department, aside from the weavers, have been notified that their services will not be required for at least two weeks, and when they are wanted they would receive due notification to return to work. Those out on strike believe they have justifiable grievance, as they consider it an injustice to order them to work on a class of goods that would lessen their wages, that is not in keeping with what was earned in the regular line and which was to the detriment of the part of the working force selected for that special line. It meant a discrimination of wages to weavers of equal skill and ability, according to the allegation of some of the weavers.

The mill managers are not taking the strike seriously and set up the claim that he wages offered for what is termed the objectionable work, to the employes of the Westerly branch mill is the same rate paid for the same kind of work at the main mill in Pawtucket. Those out on strike declare that it means lower wages without lessening the work required. Naturally the absence of the weavers affects the working force of the entire concern and the whole business will be practically suspended pending settlement of the present unsatisfactory conditions.

The weavers operate six looms each and this special line of goods is wover, one of these looms, the other five ling used for the regular line. For a six of this cloth of 75 yards and 45 chas wide, with looms adjusted to picks to the inch, the weavers regive $1.25, which means a reduction of former wages of about $1 a week. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. F. A. Thompson. The feature was an interesting address on the Crow Indians by Miss May Huston of Boston, district secretary for New England. The meeting was followed by a reception at the home of Mrs. W. H. Hilliard, where refreshments were served. Mrs. N. B. Prindle and a number of other ladies from Preston were present.

After arguments by Judge Swee-ney and George R. McKenna. counsel for defendant, Judge Williams decided to take the matter under advisement and said he would give the motion for hon-suit consideration.

The building at the corner of Broad and Union streets, recently occupied by the Exchange for Woman's Work, was started on the journey Friday afternoon to its new location in Newton court. It had progressed but a short distance when work was suspended for the day. At the session of the town council when permit was granted for the removal of the building from a part of the site for the new town building and courthouse the contractor declared that the work of actual moving would be completed within four days, and at very little inconvenience to public traffic. The contractor believes he can make good that declaration.

When this building reaches its new location the work of movine the building next the firehouse in Union street to a site in Main street will be commenced. This is a much larger structure, and the foot of the steep Union street hill into Main street. In this case the contractor says that while Main street will be partially blocked furing the process of moving that none fooling business on the street will be seriously inconvenienced for over an hour, as the work will be arranged to occasion the minimum of inconvenience to business.

Local Laconics.

The Laurel Hill factory lot on the Post road has been sold by Albert H. Langworthy to Manuel J. Diss of Miss Lillian Washburne of New York has awarded the contract for a cottage to be built on the waterside of Bay street at Watch Hill.

An additional work track, the material for which arrived Friday morning, is to be laid in the vicinity of the Westerly station Sunday.

Walking in the Light will be the subject of the sermon by Rev. F. C. A. Jones in Calvary Baptist church Sunday morning. His evening topic will be Missions in South America.

That there is something doing in the bouse moving line is demonstrated in the statement of Contractor Ecclesione to the effect that since last March he has moved 25 buildings and has contracts for the removal of several more. FITCHVILLE Humane Agent Forbids Use or Sale of Wornout Horse Which Brought $3.50.

A complaint was recently made to Deputy Humane Agent Asa M. Miller that a Jewish farmer named Delinsky, residing in Bozrahville, had two old, hroken down horses that were unfit for use. Sunday the humane agent went to Bozrahville to investigate, but found that Delinsky had sold the horses to a Jewish farmer near Salem. On a trip to that place one of the horses was found at a farm owned by a farmer named Botionick, who said he paid the huge sum of $3,50 for the horse. The horse was in such a condition that the humane agent forbid the farmer using it for a few days or selling it.
